

Genpact Recognized by Forbes as One of the World's Best Employers 2025

Genpact has been recognized by Forbes as one of the World's Best Employers 2025, marking the fifth consecutive year on this prestigious global list. This recognition reinforces Genpact's continued focus on building a workplace culture rooted in continuous learning, innovation, and long-term career growth.

The Forbes ranking is based on independent surveys of more than 300,000 employees across global organizations, evaluating key factors such as workplace culture, career development, compensation, work-life balance, and overall employee satisfaction. Employees also assessed their likelihood of recommending their employer to others, reflecting strong trust and engagement within organizations.

This recognition highlights Genpact's ongoing commitment to fostering an inclusive and future-ready workplace where employees are empowered to grow, innovate, and contribute to meaningful transformation. With a strong focus on learning and client-centricity, Genpact continues to enable its employees to actively participate in shaping the AI-driven future of business.

This milestone adds to Genpact's growing list of recent workplace recognitions, reinforcing its position as a global employer of choice committed to talent development, well-being, and sustainable growth.